

NCC applauds signing of history infrastructure package

By New California Coalition (NCC)

California is on its way to boosting job creation and ushering in a clean construction boom, thanks to Gov. Gavin Newsom's freshly signed plan to accelerate development and maximize $180 billion in infrastructure investments over the next decade.

Business and community leaders united by the nonpartisan New California Coalition (NCC) celebrated Newsom's signing of his infrastructure streamlining bills in Sacramento. Swift and thoughtful execution of Newsom's plan will help California meet ambitious climate goals, repair and replace aging infrastructure, create an estimated 400,000 good-paying jobs and expedite environmental planning.

The package includes a "shot clock" that limits the duration of lawsuits filed under the oft-abused California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) targeting water, transportation, clean energy and other vital infrastructure projects. It mirrors a solution the New California Coalition included in its 10-Point Plan for Housing Affordability following months of statewide polling. Permitting and record keeping reforms in Newsom's package will also accelerate construction of new homes amid the state's housing shortage emergency.

"Today is a happy day for the New California Coalition because passage of Governor Newsom's infrastructure package ensures a brighter tomorrow for everyday Californians worried about access to safe drinking water, affordable clean energy, quality roads and good jobs. Let's get to work building big things faster now!" said Tracy Hernandez, NCC Co-Leader and Founding CEO of the Los Angeles County Business Federation "BizFed."

"We thank Governor Newsom for his bold leadership in getting this historic infrastructure package across the finish line. We're particularly excited to partner with the Newsom administration on creating semiconductor manufacturing jobs. This package will supercharge California's ability to secure federal funding unlocked by the CHIPS and Science Act," said Jim Wunderman, NCC Co-Leader and President/CEO of the Bay Area Council.

California Accelerates Housing Production in Five Cities and Counties

 Article originally appeared in [www.gov.ca.gov ]

Governor Gavin Newsom announced that Long Beach, Moreno Valley, Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, and the Town of Windsor have been designated as Prohousing communities. Through this designation, these jurisdictions are now eligible for funding incentives and additional resources through a state grant program designed to speed housing production. To date, a total of 27 California communities are now designated as Prohousing.

Why it matters: To meet the needs of Californians and address our state's housing crisis, each local jurisdiction must take accountability to build their share of housing. To tackle this challenge, decades in the making, it will take a concerted effort between state and local leaders in partnership with nonprofits, advocates, and developers to enact Prohousing policies.

What Governor Newsom said: "Every city and county across California needs to work together to tackle the state's housing crisis. Rather than evade their duties, these communities are committed to rolling up their sleeves and building more housing, faster. We are putting the needs of Californians first and seeing to it that more housing gets built throughout the state."

Jurisdictions that earn the Prohousing Designation have demonstrated a commitment to enacting policies to accelerate housing production. They have shown themselves to be partners with the state in combating the housing crisis. These partners recognize that increasing the availability of housing statewide is critical to bettering the quality of life for all Californians, and to ending homelessness.

"Expanding housing opportunities is critical for the social and economic well-being of working Californians, families with children, older adults, and people exiting homelessness," said Business, Consumer Services and Housing Agency Secretary Lourdes Castro Ramirez. "Under Governor Newsom's leadership, we have provided more tools and incentives than ever before for communities to design policies and programs to build more housing in the right places. Congratulations to the five jurisdictions announced today. They join 22 others that have done the hard work to remove barriers to housing so that homes can be created that are accessible to all Californians."

Communities that earn the Prohousing Designation receive incentives such as additional points or other preferences in the scoring of competitive funding programs administered by the Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD), giving them an advantage over other jurisdictions.

"Creative efforts to enhance state and local partnerships are essential to meeting ambitious and necessary state housing goals," said HCD Director Gustavo Velasquez. "We recognize today local governments that are breaking down barriers to affordable housing – and reward those good actors with incentives to enhance the work they are already doing."

The Prohousing Designation Program was established by the 2019-20 Budget Act, as part of a package of support, incentives, and accountability measures to help California meet its goal of building 2.5 million homes by 2030, with at least one million of those homes affordable to people at lower income levels.

BUSINESS TOOLKIT

10 Tips

Make Sure Your Contractor Measures Up

- 1 Hire only state-licensed contractors.
- 2 Check a contractor's license number online at www.cslb.ca.gov or by calling 800.321.CSLB (2752).
- 3 Get at least three bids.
- 4 Get three references from each bidder and review past work in person.
- 5 Make sure all project expectations are in writing and only sign the contract if you completely understand the terms.
- 6 Confirm that the contractor has workers' compensation insurance for employees.
- 7 Avoid paying more than 10% down or $1,000, whichever is less.* Avoid paying in cash.
- 8 Avoid letting payments get ahead of the work.
- 9 Keep a job file of all papers relating to your project, including all payments.
- 10 Avoid making the final payment until you're satisfied with the job.

\ There is an exception to this rule for about a dozen contractors who have filed a blanket performance and payment bond with the Registrar. This information is noted on the contractor's license detail page on CSLB's website.*

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

Treasury Department Convening on Leveraging State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds to Support the Workforce

 Article originally appeared in [www.gov.ca.gov ]

As Prepared for Delivery

Thank you all for joining us here today for a conversation about the opportunity that the State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds represents for local governments to increase and improve their investments in supporting and expanding their local workforces.

This effort is a key part of the Biden-Harris Administration’s Investing in America Agenda, which is designed to create new, good-paying jobs, including union jobs and jobs, and reach every corner of the United States, including those that have too often been left behind.

As part of this effort, SLFRF is a key tool that can help state and local governments train the people that they will need in their community in order to take advantage of the jobs that are being created in climate, infrastructure, and technology by the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, the CHIPS and Science Act, and the Inflation Reduction Act.

Governments do not need to wait to make these investments in preparing their local workers for the jobs of the future—they have these SLFRF funds in hand now and can be spending them to set their regions up for long-term prosperity.

But in many places, they need additional expertise, know-how, and support to expeditiously make these workforce investments that will transform lives in their communities.

We’ve already seen communities budget nearly $12 billion in SLFRF funds to create jobs and opportunities for workers in nearly all 50 states.

Many of the projects included in this $12 billion have a strong focus on ensuring that all workers benefit from economic growth, especially those who have been left behind by prior recoveries and have barriers to employment.

These include steps like expanding registered apprenticeship and pre-apprenticeship programs in target sectors and occupations—from construction and electrification to nursing and teaching; partnerships between employers, community colleges and unions; and new career pathways for people, whether or not they go to college.

It also means providing supportive services, including childcare and home care, transportation assistance, and counseling that can help people start these pathways to good-paying jobs and enter (or re-enter) the workforce.

Treasury is doing what we can to lift up promising examples and best practices from governments engaged in this important work through our quarterly data releases and blog posts, and participation in conferences and webinars throughout the year. But Treasury and the Administration cannot do this work alone.

Philanthropic, business, and other community leaders around this table can be key in helping to deliver the technical assistance and provide the support these governments need to use tried and true models as they make investments in their workforces.

Additional investments from the private, public, and philanthropic sectors will serve as a force multiplier for federal investments, building out and expanding on the work already being done in communities across the country.

That is why we need to work with private businesses to communicate to governments about what kind of workforce support will give them the workforce they need to meet the demand for jobs created by the Administration’s historic investments.

This work is especially timely because we are coming up on the last opportunity for governments to obligate these funds, which must be completed by December 31, 2024.

It is especially time sensitive as we head into what we know will be many recipients’ final budgeting season before that deadline.

We know that the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, the CHIPS and Science Act, and the Inflation Reduction Act offer the potential to support good-paying jobs all across the country—but that requires preparing workers for those jobs.

I know that many of you are already engaged with Treasury on this important work, and I hope that this meeting today serves as a kick-off for additional collaboration as we head into a critical period for helping governments make good and effective plans for their remaining SLFRF investments.

Thank you for being here today and for your collaboration to support governments, to help them use best practices, and to help our country have a full and robust economic future.

I’d like to hand off to Gene Sperling, the White House American Rescue Plan Coordinator and Senior Advisor to the President to give more context about how today’s conversation fits into the broader Administration Investing in America agenda.

SUCCESS STORIES

Elfie Weiss, Hotcakes Bakes

[ Article originally appeared in <https://cameonetwork.org> ]

Born in Paris, France, to a family of cabaret artists, Elfie Weiss witnessed firsthand the beginning of the crazy and iconoclastic spirit of cabaret. Her father, Paco, aka Henri Astier was one of the founders along with Jean-Marie Riviere and Marc Doelnitz of the Alcazar. The famous cabaret in the heart of St. Germain des Pres where Elfie spent her youth was one of the central revolutionary and mythical places of Parisian nightlife.

Elfie started working in entertainment at the age of seven. She had a very substantial career as an actress and singer in Paris by the time she was eighteen. Elfie then moved to Los Angeles to continue her career. But she slowly realized that entertainment was not the only passion that she shared with her parents. Baking was always at center stage.

Elfie's father used to work as a pastry chef when he was a young man in order to pay for his dancing lessons at the Paris Opera. Elfie's father shared with her his love for preparing the essential bread and "sweets of life." Elfie trained primarily with her father as well as in Paris' renowned bakery Gerard Mulot and Laduree.

From dancing to baking

In 2005 after having baked privately for many clients, Elfie decided that it was time to revive her family roots. She opened a bakery with a little entertainment flair — Hotcakes Bakes!

Hotcakes Bakes, an upscale, woman-founded and owned small business, is a full-service bakery established in 2006. Baked goods include macaroons, cookies, cupcakes, and custom-made cakes. In 2020, the business completed renovations and expanded its offerings to include coffee/espresso, sandwiches, lunches, and gelato. They prepare all bakery items from scratch on-site, from French pastries & viennoiserie to award-winning cupcakes and cakes.

Hotcakes Bakes has appeared on various TV shows, including winning Cupcake Wars (Food Network), The Tori Spelling Show (Oxygen Network), Battle of the Wedding Planner (TLC Network). They received the best Wedding Cake award by In Style Magazine in 2009 and catered the Emmy Awards and the Grammy Awards.

Expanding and diversifying

In 2022, the business received its liquor license. Elfie sought working capital from the Small Business Development Corporation of Orange County to open a sister venture along with her son Dylan: Evil Twin. The new bar opened in 2023 and shares retail space with Hotcakes Bakes. Under Dylan's reins, Evil Twin provides an international selection of high-quality, hand-picked wines. Guests can explore curated natural wines and craft beers paired with locally sourced, seasonal bites while enjoying biweekly comedy nights and more.

Pacific Ink

[ Article originally appeared in <https://calosba.ca.gov/> ]

How did they get here? With a lot of hard work, dedicated support from the North San Diego Small Business Development Center (SBDC), and a key access to capital connection that spurred the growth of their business.

In 2001, shortly after starting their new small business, Pacific Ink needed help with accounting, so Jaime reached out to the San Diego & Imperial Valley SBDC Network and was connected with the North San Diego SBDC. She went to one of their workshops, which led them to 1-on-1 consulting. Through these consulting and training services, this support helped them connect with U.S. Bank representatives to access loans and capital to grow their business.

Pacific Ink initially launched with the intention to sell ink and toner. With guidance from the SBDC, the business grew to sell all office supplies, then expanded to selling facility maintenance supplies – think a cross between Home Depot and Office Depot.

Once Pacific Ink secured General Services Administration (GSA) contracts in 2004 with the federal government, they were off to the races. Their business has evolved into approximately 95% government and multi-million dollar federal and military contracts. Their business model drop ships through all of their suppliers and is growth focused.

Valley Center for the Blind provides customer service for the Pacific Ink call center to respond to customer inquiries.
