

SBE NEWS ALERT

Saluting our Veteran Entrepreneurs

By Maria Contreras Sweet,
SBA Administrator

This week, we celebrate America's second-annual National Veterans Small Business Week by honoring our military heroes who continue to serve their country as civilian job creators.

Members of our armed forces are used to managing risk and operating in stressful environments. They are accustomed to constantly changing roles and responsibilities in areas like operations, planning and logistics. Most of all, they are mission-driven, disciplined and focused. These traits not only describe outstanding service members; they also define successful entrepreneurs.

The SBA is focused on training our veterans to apply their military leadership skills to the work of small business ownership. This week, SBA district offices will be hosting more than 100 events. Download Adobe Reader to read this link content across the country to celebrate and support current and future veteran business owners.

It's inspiring to see some of the innovative businesses founded by those who wore our country's uniform. One great way for everyone to see our veteran entrepreneurs in action is to tune in to ABC's Emmy Award-winning "Shark Tank" at 9 p.m. EST this Friday, November 7. The show will feature a message from First Lady Michelle Obama and veteran entrepreneurs pitching products ranging from an elite canine-training program to a bottle opener made from recycled .50 caliber shells.

One out of every 10 small businesses in America is started by a vet. These companies employ nearly 6 million workers and generate more than $1.2 trillion in receipts. This is a talent pool we must nurture. And that's exactly what the SBA is doing by reducing small business loan fees to zero for veterans and eligible family members, by expanding our Boots to Business program, by investing in our women veterans through our VWISE program, and by funding Veterans Business Outreach Centers that help our heroes develop strong business plans to get their ventures off the ground.

"From coffee shops to tech startups, veteran-owned businesses fortify America by boosting our economic competitiveness and enriching our neighborhoods and towns," President Obama stated in declaring this National Veterans Small Business Week. Download Adobe Reader to read this link content. "Supporting veteran entrepreneurs is not just good for their bottom line, it is good for our entire Nation. With unmatched determination and unbounded ingenuity, these highly-skilled and highly-trained heroes help expand our economy and reflect an ideal at the heart of the American dream – that with hope and hard work, we can unlock opportunity and build a brighter future."

Working together, all of us at the SBA will continue to strive every day to serve our veteran entrepreneurs as well as they've served us.
