

Balfour Beatty Receives National and Regional Recognition for Exemplary Work Furthering Diversity and Women in the Industry

Image Credit: www.balfourbeattyus.com

Four industry organizations have recognized Balfour Beatty for outstanding leadership and contributions that promote diversity and the advancement of women in the industry. Balfour Beatty is committed to investing the time, talent and resources to make lasting and sustained differences in local industry and community organizations. These awards recognize the company's commitment and were presented to Sophia Cavalli, senior inclusion and diversity director, on behalf of Balfour Beatty. Cavalli leads the company's inclusion and diversity efforts in Southern California.

"Investing in the local community is a vital business imperative for us at Balfour Beatty. This includes lasting economic and community benefits that extend to diverse businesses and workers, and advance women in the industry. We are very proud of the recognition both the company and Sophia have received from these important organizations," said Brian Cahill, division president for Balfour Beatty in California. "Our work in inclusion, diversity and advancing women in the industry is not only key to enriching our business, but also the communities in which we live and work."

The National Association of Minority Contractors-Southern California Chapter (NAMC) awarded Balfour Beatty "Contractor of the Year Award" during the organization's 18th Annual Leadership Award Dinner in Los Angeles. NAMC strives to be the premier catalyst for the growth and advocacy of women and minority-owned businesses through a variety of methods, including access to construction opportunities, business development, training, political influence, and strategic partnerships. The honor recognizes the company's efforts to advance minority-owned businesses through contract awards and customized training initiatives.

The Women-In-Non-Traditional-Employment-Roles (W.I.N.T.E.R.) presented Balfour Beatty with the "Company of the Year Award" during the organization's 15th Annual W.I.N.T.E.R. Awards Gala held in Los Angeles. The organization's mission is "to train, educate and prepare women and youth for transformative careers in the construction industry." The award recognizes Balfour Beatty's efforts to expose women to careers in construction, pathways to industry careers and to close the skilled labor gap.

Trulia picks 3 cities for Amazon HQ2, based on housing affordability data

By Monica Nickelsburg,

In Amazon's hometown, Seattle, the growth-hungry e-commerce juggernaut has had a measurable impact on housing costs. That doesn't always sit well with Seattleites who lived in the city before the Amazon boom. High housing costs can also be a recruiting issue, though Seattle is still far more affordable than the Bay Area where many other tech titans are located.

Still, Amazon's experience in Seattle and desire to attract top talent could make housing affordability a factor as the company decides which where it will locate HQ2, the $5 billion second headquarters announced last Fall. If Amazon is looking closely at housing costs, Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Columbus are the best bets, according to a new analysis from Trulia.

Trulia, a real estate website under the Zillow Group umbrella, looked at housing affordability, housing inventory, and "Amazon's own prerequisites" to come up with those three cities. Trulia's chief economist, Ralf McLaughlin, analyzed affordability and price data from the site's inventory and looked at the quality of each city's graduate-level computer science and economics programs.

"While it wasn't explicitly included in their list of preferences, Amazon did include guidance in the application process that they were looking for 'diversity of housing options, availability of housing near potential sites for HQ2, and pricing' as well as cost-of-living data," McLaughlin said in an email. "These criteria are tightly correlated with housing affordability."

A new study by Apartment List predicts that smaller metros, like Pittsburgh and Columbus, would experience higher rent increases than bigger cities, like Chicago, if Amazon HQ2 located there. In Columbus, Apartment List predicts a rent increase of 1.3-1.7 percent, on top of ordinary rent growth, if the city landed the second headquarters. Pittsburgh rents would jump between 1.2-1.6 percent, according to the analysis.

The city that is chosen will have the advantage of knowing Amazon — and 50,000 high-paying jobs — are on the way, something Seattle never had. That city will have the opportunity to grow its housing inventory before Amazon arrives, though an influx of that many well-paid tech workers will likely impact the housing market anyway.

On Thursday, Amazon announced 20 cities that will move on to the next phase of its HQ2 contest, narrowing the field from 238.

"There seems to be two distinct sets of finalists, from the very expensive, cosmopolitan markets, such as Los Angeles, New York, Boston, Washington, D.C., and Toronto, to the more affordable markets with a growing tech sector, such as Austin, Denver, and Pittsburgh," said Trulia's McLaughlin. "My bet is that the latter have a better shot at landing Amazon HQ2 than the former."

Balfour Beatty

The Women Construction Owners and Executives USA (WCOE) presented Balfour Beatty's Cavalli with the "National Advocate of the Year" during the organization's Women Build America Annual Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C. WCOE is committed to making a positive difference for women in the construction industry so there will come a time when gender will cease to be a business issue. The award recognizes Cavalli's commitment to increasing opportunities for women-owned businesses and the advancement of women in the industry.

The Regional Hispanic Chamber of Commerce presented Cavalli with a "Mujeres del Año" or Women of the Year Diversity Award during its annual Awards Gala held in Long Beach, Calif. The celebration honors women for their outstanding contributions in community leadership, education, business, government, cultural and economic development, and recognizes their impact, influence and inspiration in the areas of character, commitment, excellence and civility. The award recognizes Cavalli's efforts in inclusion, diversity and youth engagement inspiring the next generation.

"I am proud to provide the leadership and direction for the company's inclusion and diversity initiatives throughout Southern California," said Cavalli. "We are passionate about supporting local and diverse businesses, under-represented workers, youth, and the community-at-large—and are so appreciative of this recognition. With the support and leadership of our division president, Brian Cahill – it's all been possible. I look forward to building upon the progress we've made and making an even greater impact in the future."

About Balfour Beatty
