Metro officials promote transportation jobs at Crenshaw High School

Metro CEO Art Leahy and other agency officials visited Crenshaw High School on Friday morning as part of African American History Month and to promote careers in the transportation industry to students who live and go to school along the route of the future Crenshaw/LAX Line. The high school is a short walk from the future Crenshaw/Vernon station. Five students from Crenshaw High will be joining Metro as interns this summer.

Next stop: Art will be visiting Inglewood High on March 3.
